Democratic demogogues who take part in this game, may as well understand thing else, can beat them all hollow.

Now for a good spring trade. There is every reason to believe that the business of this spring will show a decided improvement over that of any seasons or some years past. Our immense crops are being marketed at home and shroad, and the farmers have nothing to complain of in the way of returns. The passage of the silver bill settles the quation as to future shrinkages, and gives consumption will become enhanced in value. A basis has been laid for some profit upon goods manufactured and sold. It is worthy of notice that the New York hotels are now full of customers from every section, and their business is larger than that of last year, besause of the unusual number of Westthe people awake to the danger before business than we have had for six years.
